Note: throughout this report you will see references to both Collingwood Yards and Contemporary Arts Precincts Ltd (CAP). CAP is the legal entity that operates the site at 35 Johnston Street, Collingwood. Contemporary Arts Precincts Ltd trades as Collingwood Yards.

Collingwood Yards acknowledges the traditional owners and sovereign custodians of the land on which Collingwood Yards is situated, the Wurundjeri People. We extend our respects to their Ancestors and all First Peoples and Elders past, present, and emerging.

We celebrate that Collingwood has always been a place of great cultural significance to First Peoples, particularly artists and musicians, and acknowledge the vital role that these communities continue to play in the cultural life of Collingwood.

Message from the Chair

This year has seen Contemporary Arts Precincts – Collingwood Yards respond to challenges with growth, adaptability and a strong sense of community and possibility in Naarm (Melbourne). I wish to extend my gratitude to our wonderful tenants, artists and arts organisations for their unwavering resilience, inspiration and creativity.

During my second year as Chair of CAP, I have seen the precinct undergo a rapid expansion welcoming new and diverse tenants over the years. We were privileged to host many events of various scales, attracting tens of thousands of visitors to our courtyard, corridors and creative spaces.

Thank you to our outgoing CEO Sophie Travers and the Collingwood Yards team who have contributed to the continued success and growth of the organisation. Welcome to our Interim CEO Nail Aykan who is leading the team to support our collective efforts and shared vision.

I extend my heartfelt thanks to all who have dedicated their time and effort in support of our endeavours at Collingwood Yards including my fellow Board and Committee members who generously volunteer their time to guide and support the evolution and growth of Contemporary Arts Precincts. Your invaluable insights, wise counsel and passion for our community and the arts are greatly appreciated.

I'm genuinely excited by the prospects that await Contemporary Arts Precincts – Collingwood Yards, delivering on our strategic plan and our potential for strong financial outcomes and growth, as we build upon the excellent foundations established throughout the year.

Miriam Silva, AM
Chair

Message from the CEO

As every year brings different challenges and opportunities, CAP/CY has continued to evolve and remain steadfast and resilient during the past financial year, in response to the growing demands and expectations of running a creative arts precinct. The 2022/23 could be aptly described as 'the year of transition'.

There are numerous factors that contribute to an important year's work, with the most crucial being the individuals who make it all possible. Therefore, I would like to dedicate my words to express my gratitude and pay tribute to all those who have played a vital role in our accomplishments over the past year.

I thank Sophie Travers, outgoing CEO of CAP/CY, whose hard work and commitment to the precinct over the last 2 years. I pay my personal gratitude to our staff, for without your spirited hard work, resilience, and commitment, we would not have achieved so much.

I extend my gratitude to all Board members, including CAP/CY Chair Miriam Silva AM, whose strategic leadership has been highly regarded during this period of transition. I thank our Treasurer, Ian Horne, for his expertise and prudent stewardship of our financial matters. Our board members fulfil invaluable roles on a voluntary basis, and I thank them for their contributions to governance, strategic direction, and, most notably, their compassionate leadership.

During my relatively brief tenure, I have observed a vast reservoir of goodwill within our tenant community and the creative arts sector. As a not-for-profit community organization, it is imperative that we consistently seek to invest in our resources and expand our services while pursuing novel strategies and opportunities.

It has been a privilege to serve as Interim CEO, working alongside many dedicated individuals and organizations. I have full confidence in CAP/CY's strategic positioning to not only meet the challenges but also capitalise on the opportunities in the years ahead. Thank you for your continued support and commitment to CAP/CY's vision to enrich our creative arts community.

Nail Aykan
Interim CEO

About Us

Embedded in Collingwood's rich urban fabric, and created to harness a physical space that fosters collaboration, Collingwood Yards is a vibrant, mixed-use precinct for the arts – a place of cultural and artistic production with an open interface to the public.

Designed by Fieldwork, Collingwood Yards reworks the institutional buildings of Collingwood Technical School, built in 1913 on the land of the Wurundjeri people of the Kulin nation. While the buildings are of social, historical and architectural significance, by 2016 the site was a vacant remnant of changing vocational training trends.

The arts and creative sector had suffered a similar sense of neglect, typically being priced out of the inner north due to rising property prices. The establishment of Contemporary Arts Precincts Ltd, the social enterprise who manages Collingwood Yards, was formed as a charitable social enterprise with a vision to transform the site's empty buildings into a sustainable, permanent, and affordable home for artists and independent arts organisations across disciplines. Supported by philanthropic investment, government and commercial partners, the project reflects the growing importance of engraining arts and creativity in our inner-city communities.

Occupying half a block in Collingwood, Collingwood Yards is a mixed-use site that layers studios, public spaces, hospitality venues and retail tenancies in diverse and evolving ways. It is home to more than 50 creative studios and anchored by a selection of design-centric retailers and cafes, bars and meeting spaces.

Collingwood Yards believes that the importance of keeping a diverse range of artists and creative communities active in any city cannot be understated. The social benefits of arts participation is well documented and affordable space is a key part of supporting this. Collingwood Yards is both a transformational project for its neighbourhood and a proof of concept for our broader goal: to develop a new model of providing affordable and sustainable arts space in Australia.

Our Vision and Purpose

Our Vision

To develop and support an innovative, sustainable and equitable creative community.

Our Purpose

To support creative practitioners and organisations to innovate, by offering the security of high-quality spaces for creation and engagement with audiences, platforms for collaboration and consistent invitations to engage with the wider community

Our Place

Collingwood Yards is a sustainable initiative that provides affordable workspace for hundreds of creative industry workers in film and media, fashion, architecture, music, design, visual and performing arts and craft. Tenants have been chosen to represent excellence in their field and robust connections to their diverse communities. The relationships between the subsidised and non-subsidised cultural and creative industries are part of a twenty first century approach that indicates that public and private subsidy of arts, culture and creativity has a positive impact on the success of commercial creative businesses and other businesses.

By the end of 2022 we celebrated our first full year of uninterrupted operation. Throughout the 2022-23 financial year, the precinct experienced significant growth, with many new individuals joining us each month. We hosted numerous events of varying scales and warmly received tens of thousands of visitors in our courtyard, corridors, and creative spaces.

“We can meet for a coffee under the trees, visit each other’s offices, galleries and studios, and bump into each other in the hallways to chat. This kind of collegiality is spoken about in larger institutions, but everyone is too busy to do it. Reciprocity and cross-pollination between peers leads to generative and exciting projects for our artists. It’s thrilling to be a part of”

Our People

Tenants

At the heart of Collingwood Yards sits its people. Having braved the challenges of Covid-19, 2022 was our first year of continuous operation and saw our community of artists, art workers, creative entrepreneurs and supporters come together in new and fruitful ways. It also saw our community and networks continue to evolve. We welcomed new tenants like independent tertiary education college Collarts and First Nations storytelling not-for-profit Common Ground, new studio artists and rehoused existing studio artists like Kate Beynon into new studios. In July 2022 we also welcomed the second group of six artists and collectives into the shared studio space subsidised and programmed by the City of Yarra's Room to Create program, which is funded by the Lord Mayor's Charitable Foundation.

Collaborations

Our monthly tenant meetings, chaired by Channon Goodwin of Composite continue to go from strength-to-strength. A program of visiting speakers, tenant presentations, commissioning and collaborative opportunities and collective imagining provides a framework for our tenant community to thrive.

The Collingwood Yards artist studios housed more than 40 artists and arts workers throughout 2022/23. Meetings, social events and celebrations punctuated the year and allowed studio residents and micro-organisations crucial opportunities for connection and collaboration.

Uncle Jack Charles

We'd like to acknowledge the passing of much loved Boon Wurrung, Dja Dja Wurrung, Woiwurrung and Yorta Yorta senior Elder, Brother, Uncle, Great Uncle Jack Charles, on 13th September 2022.

Uncle Jack was an actor, musician, potter and gifted performer. A member of the Stolen Generation, Uncle Jack has been acknowledged as the grandfather of Aboriginal theatre in Australia having co-founded the first Aboriginal theatre company Nindethana in 1972.

Uncle Jack was awarded the prestigious Tudawali Award at the Message Sticks Festival in 2009, honouring his lifetime contribution to Indigenous media. He also received a Green Room Lifetime Achievement Award in 2014 and a Red Ochre Lifetime Achievement Award by the Australia Council for the Arts in 2019. Uncle Jack was also named Victorian Senior Australian of the Year for 2016.

“The sense of community spirit has been transformative for our organisation and our team; we are modelling our new Strategic Plan around the possibilities now open to us through interdisciplinary pollination of practices, and unique partnership and collaboration opportunities between art organisations and social enterprises”.

The family of Uncle Jack Charles have given permission to use his name and image.

Bank of Melbourne Collingwood Yards Residency

Sister duo, Fatuma and Laurinda Ndenzako of slow fashion label, Collective Closets joined us in 2022 as our Bank of Melbourne Collingwood Yards Residents. Established in 2016, Collective Closets is a label that fills a gap in the Australian fashion market. It connects Australia to the talent, beauty and rich history of the African continent and celebrates the women in Fatuma and Laurinda's community.

In describing their experience of being in residence Fatuma and Laurinda say "the very first time we walked into our studio – we were right at home. We love all the natural light that pours into the studio, the high ceilings and the fact that we can sometimes hear the chatter and laughter in the courtyard as we work. It's special, with a sense of community"

Since coming into the studio, Collective Closets have been part of the exhibitions Melbourne Now at the Ian Potter Centre: NGV Australia and Goddess at ACMI and have collaborated with Melbourne-based shoe brand Radical Yes. In May they launched a new collection of bold prints and new silhouettes inspired by their travels to Nairobi, Kenya, and customers have been able to view and shop this collection and book 1:1 styling sessions in the studio.

Yarra's Room to Create Studio

The Room to Create (RTC) Studios at Collingwood Yards is a Yarra City Council initiative in partnership with the Lord Mayor's Charitable Foundation, which provides subsidised studio spaces for artists in the community. The RTC program was set up by Yarra City Council as a direct response to the constant challenge of securing affordable spaces to work and live for creative people, typical of gentrifying cities across the world. The RTC Studios at Collingwood Yards is one way the program is working to support artists and creative organisations across our community. Current RTC artists are Luke George, J Davies, Mira Oosterweghel, SLO Collective, Elvis Richardson and Torika Bolatagici.

Our Community

Festivals and events

Our leafy courtyard and attractive public realm saw high demand as a venue throughout the warmer months, hosting more than 200 events of diverse scale and profile. Openings, workshops, exhibitions, celebrations and performances explored and experimented with this new cultural space. Monthly night markets, curated and produced by key tenants Stay Soft Studio, received large audiences flocking to stalls selling arts, crafts and independently produced items.

Our space and tenants proved a drawcard for major cultural partners, looking to spotlight and leverage our unique community.

Craft Contemporary

As part of Craft Contemporary 2022, the precinct was activated with a series of craft related exhibitions and activities. Agency Projects presented Lharagula Ngididin (Crocodile Trap), a collaborative piece from eight Numburindi artists. Bookshop by Uro hosted The shape of things to come: new forms of digital craft in architecture, a discussion with David Leggett, Paul Loh, Roland Snooks and Maitiú Ward on digital design technology. Stay Soft Studio staged their Spring Night Market in the courtyard. Tantri Mustika hosted a Nerikomi Masterclass workshop, teaching participants clay staining methods. At Hope Street Radio, studio artist Luke George staged the rope-based installation Display of Affection #4: Soft Opening. Collingwood Neighbourhood House exhibited new works from their African sewing group. Hosho Paper ran a jewellery making workshop by artists Angela Pollock and Paula Mahoney.

Live Leisure Yabby Fishing Restaurant (Melbourne Fringe Festival)

For one weekend during Melbourne Fringe Festival, Long Prawn staged a Live Leisure Yabby Fishing experience in the courtyard. Ticket holders were given instructions and a rod and were given an hour of 'fishing' time. The caught yabbies were then cooked by Chef Lorcán Kan (Things Palace, ex Where The Light Gets in, ex Attica) over a hot coal grill. Long Prawn writes "While yabbies are an Australian endemic freshwater crayfish, live crustacean fishing restaurants are a widely practised Taiwanese pastime. In one of his books, Taiwanese essayist Lin Ching-hsuan once said that prawn fishing is "idiotic and does not achieve anything meaningful." This project was funded by Cash to Create (via the Melbourne Fringe Fund) and was a Collingwood Yards Public Space Commission.

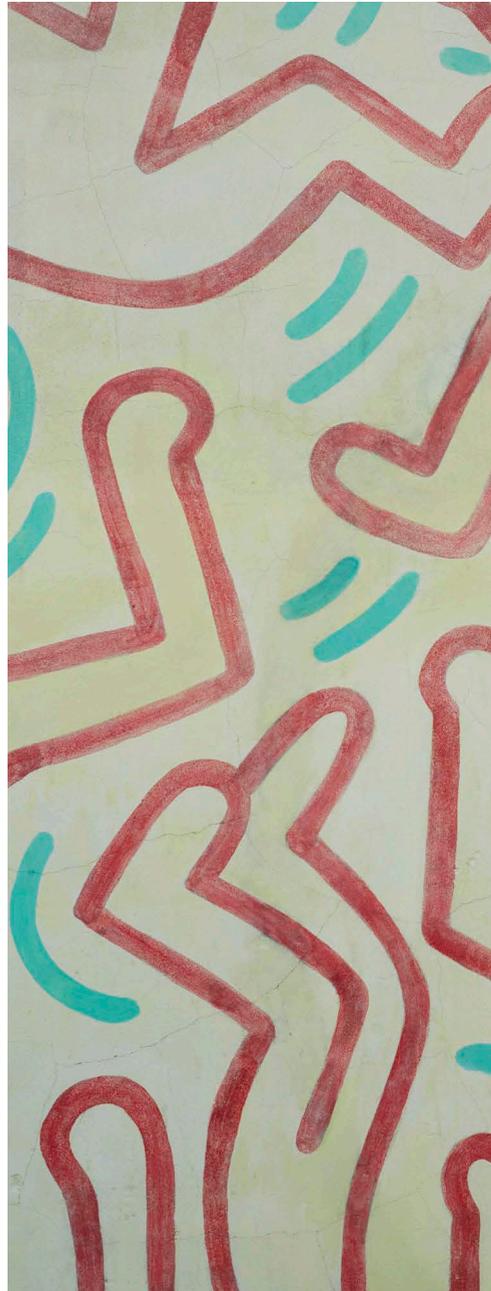

Hopeful Chae

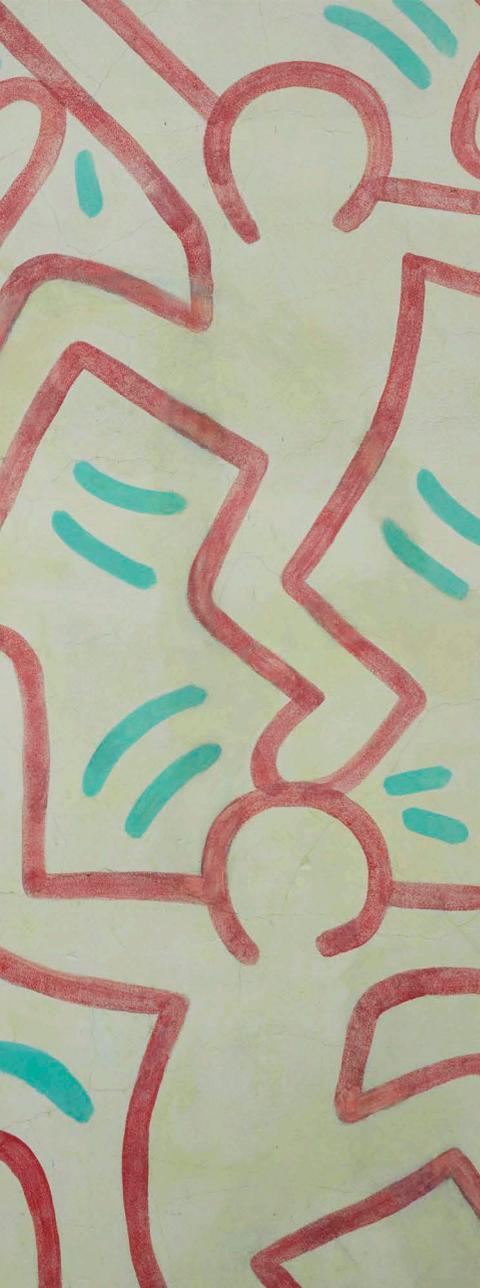

On the eve of Labour Day, we welcomed Jung Eun Chae of eponymous Korean restaurant Chae, tenants Ellie Bouhadana and Jack Shaw of Hope St Radio, Bar Liberty's head chef Zackary Furst, Nagesh Seethiah of Mauritian restaurant Manze and Pidapipo to the courtyard for a party celebrating the twilight of summer. Guests received a small plate from each stall, with additional drinks from Hope Street Radio to accompany them. The event started at midday, with live music keeping the vibes strong into the early eve.

Autumn Room

In collaboration with Monash Architecture students, with the support of our tenants Baracco + Wright, a Design Make/Unbuild process was used to design and construct an Autumn room in the courtyard at Collingwood Yards. The room is constructed using the large Plane trees, which were in various states of Autumn defoliation, as a structure. The primary purpose of the room was to serve as an event space during Melbourne Design Week, and then it will function as a Winter room for the community/precinct after the event.

The 'Autumn Room' was intended to provoke and demonstrate alternative ways of creating semi-permanent spaces in response to seasonal needs.

First Peoples Reference Group (FPRG)

CAP acknowledges the First Peoples of the land on which CAP is situated. We extend our respect to their Elders and Ancestors and all First Peoples past, present, and future.

CAP respects that Collingwood is and has always been a place of great cultural significance to First Peoples, particularly Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artists and musicians, and acknowledges the vital role that these communities have played and continue to play in the cultural life of the Collingwood community.

CAP recognises that for our creative community to fully succeed we must:

- Pay ongoing and appropriate respect to the First Peoples of the land in which we work and create
- Actively support Aboriginal artists as a vital part of our community
- Create an organisation, a tenant community and a culturally safe place that engages First Peoples as artists, participants, workers and audiences
- Explore and embrace opportunities to develop relationships, collaborations, partnerships, exchanges and dialogues between Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal people both within and beyond the CAP community

CAP has established the First Peoples Reference Group (FPRG) to ensure that our operations, programs and activities are meaningfully engaged with and respectful to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities. This is particularly the case for any aspect of CAP's operation that identifies as being by, about, for, or engaged with First Peoples.

The FPRG is empowered as a subcommittee of CAP's Board. It reports to and can make recommendations directly to CAP's Board and CEO. Members include both First Nations CY tenants and local community leaders and experts. During FY2022/23, members of the FPRG included:

- Uncle Andrew Gardiner, Chair
- Tony Briggs
- Alex Paige
- Angela Flynn
- Kerry Kennell
- Moorina Bonini
- Natasha Carter
- Theodore Cassady

The group aims to:

- Play an active role in ensuring that CAP is open to, utilised by and welcoming to Aboriginal artists, communities and audiences and, where required, assist CAP in the development of specific programs, strategies and targets
- Support the development and prioritisation (within time and budget constraints) of proactive initiatives to support Aboriginal artists, individuals and organisations. Initiatives under consideration as CAP develops may include artist residencies, an Elder in residence program, employment and career programs and/or other initiatives suggested by the group
- Support the establishment of appropriate protocols for engaging with Indigenous communities in a creative context
- Support CAP and our tenant community to build meaningful relationships and partnerships with First Peoples
- Support the development of appropriate protocols for Welcoming and Acknowledgement of Country for CAP and our tenant community
- Facilitate CAP connection to appropriate knowledge and history about the area
- Identify and advise the CAP Board and CEO of any other matters, opportunities or issues that group members identify as important

Our Operations Team

The people behind the service

The Operations team, Dale Buckley, Rob Mackay-Clift and Richard Stringer, brings together a diverse range of expertise and skills across the performing and visual arts, facilities, production, construction and project management fields. These collective skills serve the distinctive needs of our unique space we fondly refer to as The Yards.

Beyond being traditional property and facility managers, the operations team is acutely attuned to the unique role Collingwood Yards occupies in the realm of the arts community. They facilitate access to systems, processes, and procedures that enable artists to transform their ideas into tangible expressions in the real world. Leveraging a diverse range of spaces, they play an essential role in facilitating artistic visions to everyday life.

Another facet of the Operations Team's responsibilities involves collaborating with current and potential tenants to enhance their spaces. Ongoing and upcoming projects involve the installation of weatherproof awnings for the Runner Up Bar rooftop, streamlining processes to introduce air conditioning into tenant areas, ensuring a seamless and high-quality fit-out for the new Stefanino Panino sandwich shop, engaging in a collaborative effort to reimagine the studios, establishing a new community hub (CY Space), and resurfacing the courtyard to enhance accessibility.

A typical day might involve orienting a group of new tenants to the precinct. This typically involves covering essential details such as Emergency and Evacuation procedures, explaining access into and out of the precinct, and providing guidance on utilising the online Tenant Dashboard.

Following the induction session, a guided tour of the precinct often ensues, serving as an introduction for tenants to meet fellow tenants, artists, organisations, and frequent visitors in the corridors and arcades.

The Ops Team frequently handles inquiries about events, whether it's a small-scale gathering within a tenancy, such as a book launch and author's discussion at Uro Bookshop and Composite, or a precinct-wide takeover, like the Movember/Lululemon activity extravaganza in October. Tenants and potential hirers are encouraged to creatively utilize the spaces, and the team actively supports them in turning those ideas into reality.

Nearly 400 individuals collaborate and create within 47 galleries, arts organisations, studios, and commercial office spaces, utilising primarily shared resources. It is imperative for the productivity and well-being of everyone in this unique artistic enclave that the infrastructure and systems operate as intended. The team collaborates with a dedicated group of consultants, suppliers, and subcontractors to uphold safety measures, adhere to emergency procedures, and ensure the continued functionality of essential amenities such as lifts, water, power, and services on a daily basis.

Financial Reports 2022-2023

Collingwood Yards recorded a deficit of $242k over the past financial year. The result reflects the organisation's commitment to adapting and growing amidst unprecedented circumstances, notably the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic.

It's important to highlight that this financial outcome is largely linked to the substantial growth in facilities and operations over the past 12 months. This growth signifies a strategic investment in the precinct's long-term sustainability and development.

Collingwood Yards remains steadfast to the growth and sustainability of the precinct and confident that these strategic investments will generate long-term benefits for our tenant community and the creative industries.

Thank You

The success of Collingwood Yards in 2022/23 is a reflection of the strength of our relationships within the arts, philanthropic, corporate and government sectors. As our immediate circle of tenants, studio artists and partners grow our relationships have multiplied.

Our philanthropic partners continued to support our work and our tenants by way of regular meetings, introductions and opportunities. Many of our partners were able to attend our opening events, to witness the transformative power of their gifts.

Government Partners

Our Key Government Partner, Creative Victoria, has been a supportive pillar throughout a challenging period. We are grateful for your support.

The strong relationship between the City of Yarra and Collingwood Yards has been demonstrated by our collaborative work in the Collingwood Connections program, funded by a VicHealth Everyday Creativity Partnerships grant. This two year project draws on the network, expertise and talent of the City of Yarra's community arts team.

Corporate Partner

The continuous support from the Bank of Melbourne is highly valued. The innovative financial support model and the ongoing creation of opportunities are crucial to the success of numerous recipients and the precinct as a whole.
